To whom it may concern,

Aiza has been working for our family of four (We are a couple with an adult son and a teenage son) since 2013. She has been with us for almost 12 years taking care of us together with another helper. Her main duties are cooking (at least three meals a day) and marketing as well as taking care of my teenage son when he was toddler and then a young kid. She also needs to clean the house (total floor area of over 2,000 square feet) during weekends or holidays when my other helper is on leave or on vacation.

2. Aiza's performance was of a consistently high standard throughout her 12 years of tenure. As our home cook for over a decade, her dishes were always of restaurant quality and variety. She is good at both western and oriental cuisines. She also always took initiatives to develop new dishes and getting quality groceries at value-for-money prices. Her dishes will surely be something which our family misses most. She also got along well with my sons, my parents and in-laws who visited us regularly and always joined the cooking. She mixed extremely well with my younger son when he was a toddler and took good care of him. Their relationship remained close and Aiza's well being and feelings remain close of the heart of my son. To us, Aiza is our friend and a family.

3. Aiza is quiet but principled with a determination to improve her life as well as that of her family. She is ready to offer her views and advices and can always work and deal with situations independently. She is professional and delivers her tasks responsibly. She is easy to communicate and work with once she gets to know you. Her independence has saved me save a lot of troubles and time guiding her.

4. All in all, Aiza has always been one of my greatest help and blessing to maintain the well being of my family while I am a working mum. Surely, we will miss her a lot and I hope that her future employer will feel the same and treasure her as much as we do. I am happy to
