To Whom It May Concern;

We are a British family relocating to the U.S. and are unfortunately leaving behind our Philippine helper of over 6 years (March 2010 to August 2016). She has been with us since both our children were born (age 6yrs and 3yrs.)

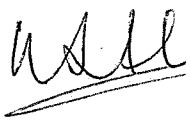

I work part-time and Medina has taken very good care of my children in my absence, from organising play dates, to taking them to swimming lessons, cooking them simple nutritional meals and much more! She has a great bond with both children and I trust her entirely with them and feel very comfortable leaving them both with her.

As she has looked after my children since birth she is very knowledgable about early baby care, she was a great help in setting naps and routines and weaning onto solids (making and preparing purees etc). I would like to add that she is very discrete and was always aware of our need for privacy and family time.

Medina has always managed her time efficiently and as well as looking after the kids also looks after the house, including cleaning, ironing and other household chores. She is motivated and uses her initiative to make sure things are done around the home. She is a a very capable cook and made most of our weekday meals in the first year following the birth of our children. She can follow recipes written in English easily and is able to prepare a good variety of Western dishes.

Medina is patient, calm, reliable and very trustworthy. My children love her and we will be very sad to say goodbye. She has been a key part of the very positive experience we have had living and raising children here. We are happy to recommend her to any prospective employer.

Yours sincerely,
